I am pleased to inform you we will be holding an open meeting of the National Policy Forum on Friday, April 8, from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. in Sacramento at CAL-EXPO, 1600 Exposition Boulevard (Gate D). Topics for discussion include the Endangered Species Act, private property, water rights and the impact of these issues on jobs and economic growth.

I anticipate this will be an afternoon of discussion that will have a far-reaching impact on our efforts to address environmental problems in California and the rest of the United States and I hope you will be able to join us as an audience participant. Also, please encourage any of your colleagues who may be interested in environmental issues to attend this important meeting.

Please contact Dick Thaxton, Forum Director, at 202/544-2900 if you have any questions about our meeting in Sacramento.

When it comes to government environmental policies...

Washington should be listening to California.

For too long, family farmers, ranchers, agricultural water users, loggers, small business owners, outdoor enthusiasts and other Californians have been shut out of the policy decisions that affect their families each and every day. It's time for a change. It's time for Washington to start listening to California on issues like:

- ☐ Endangered Species Act
- ☐ Private Property Rights
- ☐ Government Lands Issues
- ☐ Water Rights

"Listening to America" wants to hear from you!
